CHIEF CONSUL POTTER-REJOICING ON ALL SIDES.

Wheelmen in goodly numbers assembled at the dinner table at the Columbia last night, are a good dinner. listened to music and heard speeches by sentative riders of the bicycle, the Chief Exutive of the city and Street Commissioner War-It was the annual dinner of the Metropolitan ssociation of Cycling Clubs, and it was one of the most successful in the history of the association. banquet hall was nandsomely decorated with flags and club emblems. The music was of that light jingling sort often rendered by Hun garian bands, which makes one smile and causes sterious movement of one's feet.

Owing to the recent trophics won in the cawheelmen, those present were a happy body of riders of the wheel. R. Lindsay Coleman, president Cycle Board of Trade, was absent on account of a previous engagement. Isaac B. Potter was received with cheers of approval and his speech with loud applause. His clever victory in the Armstrong Baggage bill fight seems to have crowned the popuchief consul the cycle king of the State. who had anticipated that Mayor Strong would say something sensational were disappointed. The nporaneous one, and that he did not know what he intended to say until he was on his feet. leaned rather to the humorous than to wheeling hit, which caused a ripple of good-natured approval. When the Mayor was escorted to his seat he no ticed a little brown earthen teapot beside his plate and that pot of tea took the place of the sparkling wine, which usually plays an important part at such gatherings. There was only one teapot, how ever, and the Mayor shared his feast with none. The toasts and speakers were as follows: "Why Ne Are Here." P. Anthony Brock, president M.

A. C. C.; "Why I am Here." Mayor W. L. Strong:
"Cranks," Chief Consul I. B. Potter; "How Wheelmen Can Help Us," Colonel George E. Warring, jr.; Cycling in General," E. G. Whitaker, president Bar Association; "Affairs Across the River," Rob ert Gentle, Chief Consul, State of New-Jersey; "What Inspired the M. A. C. C.," Charles A. Sheehan, ex-president M. A. C. C.

Among some of those present were the following Horning, A. D. Horning, R. F. Corcorn, Dr. erman, W. G. Glass, Fred W. Keer W. F. H. Horning, A. D. Glass, Fred W. Keer, W. E. Keerman, W. G. The first team prize in the bowling tournament went to the Atalanta Wheelmen, of Newark, the second team prize to the Golden Rod Wheelmen, of this city, the third team prize to the Riversile Wheelmen. The first individual prize was presented to W. E. Sawyer, of the Golden Rod Wheelmen; the second individual prize to C. K. Starr, of the same cub, and the third to C. Olozaga. The latter won the first prize last year.

It was nearly midnight when Mayor Strong arose to speak. Said he: "This bleycle craze has become cutte a craze, not only in this country, but in others. While I don't know that I shall ride a wheel, my son and daughter are enthusinsts, and it looks as if they would make a convert of their mother when they get up to Richfield, and even I may have to surrender, for they say of me, that the Mayor changes his mind. My house is captive to the wheel now. The real reason why I came here was to have a little fun, for I like to get out with the boys. I will be Mayor atill when you hold your fifth annual dinner, and if I don't get an invitation, I will send you a bottle of wine anyway."

Mr. Potter's talk on "Cranks" was humorous, and his words caused much merriment. He showed that the cranks, so-called, have made the world what it is, and he mentioned as notable examples Julius Caesar, Napoleon, Cromwell, Christopher Columbus, John Brown, Confuctus and Hannibel. He said that if the Mayor would only write a letter to Governor Morton asking him to sign that Armstrong Baggare bill at once the wheelmen of the land would love them both even better than they did at present.

WHY GOVERNOR MORTON YIELDED.

COMPETITION WOULD INVOLVE DELAY IN SECUR-ING AGENTS UNDER THE RAINES LAW.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: The dispatch of your n your paper of this date regarding the Civil Service classification of the special agents to be appointed under the new Liquor Tax law is defective in not giving the reasons that affected Governor Mortor in his approval of that classification—reasons evintly unknown to your correspondent.

No one has had a better opportunity to know the ation given by the Governor to this subect than the writer, who has been engaged in urging the arguments favorable to the inclusion of th agents in the competitive schedule. I know that the Governor has given the question his earnest attention and that he has been i that the positions should be filled by competition was finally convinced by the representations of Commissioner Lyman that the delay in obtaining its by the competitive method would prevent the enforcement of the new law upon May I next, the date fixed by statute, with consequent confusion and embarrassment. The heavy and almost impossible task imposed upon the Governor by competition under the circumstances was imprecable.

The suggestion that the places might be temporarily filled pending such a competition he rejected, because his business experience was that satisfactory applicants would not accept such temporary and uncertain employment.

While I have differed from the Governor in his conclusions in this matter, I think it due to him that I should testify to his earnest and conscientious consideration of the question in all its aspects and to the fact that he was moved to his final action upon it by his desire to subserve what he believed to be the best public interests.

SILAS W. BURT,

Albany, April 9, 1856. Civil Service Commissioner.

GOVERNOR MORTON IN TOWN.

Governor Morton, accompanied by Mrs. Morton to daughters, came to the city last even ing from Albany and went to their usual quarters the Hotel Renaissance, Broadway and Forty rd-st. The Governor declined to say anything for publication. The object of his visit is to see Mrs Morton and Miss Morton off for Europe to-day They will sail on the Kalser Wilhelm II of the Hamburg-American Line, which leaves its pler in Hoboken for the Mediterranean at 10 a. m.

THE MISSIONARIES IN TURKEY.

THIS MAY BE THE LAST STRAW.

From The Kansas City Star.

From The Kansas City Star.

The story of Mr. Knapp, taken in connection with the report that all American missionsries, and even agents of the Red Cross Society, are to be expected from Turkey, indicates that the United States should "look alive" as to the interests of its citizens stemporarily abding in the Turkish Empire. It may be that the "barbarous Turk" this time is loading the last straw on the camel's back and arriving at the point where a case of "foreign intervention" will begin that will mean something.

TIME FOR US TO ACT. From The New-Orleans Picayune.

From The New-Orleans Picayune.

It is, therefore, to be hoped that the State Department will very promptly notify the Turkish Government that any attempt either to expel American missionaries from Armenia or do them bodily harm or other injury will be promptly punished. The United States has no entangling alliances with any European Power, hence can act toward Turkey with a free hand. The Turks need a lesson badly, and it is likely that Europe, while prevented by international fealousies from interfering at Constantinople, would gladly see this country interpose where there exists so good a pretext as an injury to one of its citizens.

THE COURSE TO PURSUE

What the situation demands is the most rigid investigation, and, should the report which we have received prove correct, an imperative demand that Turkey at once right every wrong that she has committed. There is no chance for a course less expressive of the principle which should govern in this matter. From The Detroit Free Press.

REPARATION MUST BE DEMANDED.

From The Chicago Record. If the reports concerning the case of Dr. Knapp, the American missionary, who is said to have been expelled from his mission and afterward confine in a Turkish jail, are true, the American public will halst that the President make an immediate demand for an apology and reparation.

ENGLAND'S TARDY INDIGNATION.

from The Rochester Union and Advertiser. In the light of late events, the indignation of the English over the prospect of the expulsion of Christian missionaries from Asia Minor is ludicrous. We do not mean to be understood as approving of the Droposed expuision of the missionaries, but we do mean to say that the English are the last people who have a right to be indignant over such a prospect.

The season of the Patria Club ended last night and important session that notable organization guest of the club for this occasion was Dr. Andrew ex-Minister to Berlin and to St. Petersburg and now a member of the Venezuelan Commission. Dr. of the club, the Hon. Ellis H. Roberts. In the familiar rooms at Sherry's a brilliant audience was gathered to welcome the speaker, who had come to talk about "The Problem of High Crime in the United States," Dr. White had two texts to offer, one from Genesia iv, 10: "Thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground," and the second from the Declaration of Independence, beginning: "We hold these truths," etc., and ending with "That among these are life, liberty and the pursuit

"And first I remark," he said, "as a simple matter of fact, that in no other civilized country does our brother's blood cry from the ground so loudly and so vainly as in this country of ours, and that under no other civilized Government, whether monarch, or republic, is the right to life at the present time class of criminals. Simply as a matter of fact, the United States is, among all the nations of the Christlan world, that country in which the crime of murder is most frequently committed and least frequently punished."

THE PROFESSION OF CRIME.

Continuing from this he held that that in all of the great cities of this country there is a welldefined criminal class, a class of men whose profession is crime, just as clearly as the profession and that of Mr. Choate, at New-York, the law, to the preservation of wild beasts in India. Jungles have been developed in which its stronger men may prowl, and from which they sally forth to prey upon the community. Judiciary committees of legislatures exhibit a strong conservative opposition to any thorough cuting into or clearing up of these jungles, and in the larger cities the eminent criminal lawyer, "the man ready to resort to any expedient and to go to any length in the defence of crime, from wheedling the justice in his court o bullying the Governor in his bedchamber, is a recognized personage." The speaker passed from this argument on what may be termed the nurture of the criminal class to a consideration of vital statistics, showing that the increase of criminals has been far in excess in proportion to the increase of the population. In 1850 the number of offenders in prison for each million of inhabitants was about 30°, in 1860 over 60°, ten years later, nearly 900, and in 1880 nearly 1,200. Dr. White showed by statistics that the number of homeides in this country for seven years, ending last year, was 47,40°. The increase to the million of population is from 53.1 to 155.3 per cent. The number of legal executions for the same years was 722, and the number of lynchings. Life.

HANGING IN RELATION TO CRIME. have been developed in which its stronger men may

HANGING IN RELATION TO CRIME. Upon this the speaker remarked that it was to be observed that four years ago when the number of legal executions notably decreased the proportion of lynchings was notably increased, but they have average far above the number of legal execution He took account also of the number of persons who might be supposed to be in prison suffering for de grees of crime not punishable with death. This consoling reflection, he said, must also be denied Referring to his figures for the six years already Referring to his figures for the six years aiready cited, and deducting the number legally and lilegally executed, there still remain 42.6%. The tenth census shows 4.60% persons in prison charged with bomielde; the eleventh census, 7.2%. Short consolation there, his auditors seemed to think. Dr. White passed on to cite instances of unpunished murders and illustrated forciby how the execution follows conviction at such a lengthened period from the commission of the crime that the deterrent effect of the sentence is wholly lost. He spoke of the extreme severity of the last century finding its antithesis in the extreme leadty of this, saying: "In our own country this pseudo-philanthropy became the vary of a considerable number of people as our own country this pseudo-philanthropy became on the part of a considerable number of people a fad."

SENTIMENTALITY AND CRIME.

Phrase-mongers peddled out the idea that society, it reached its highest point in the assertion that society has no right to punish the criminal, but that its only right is to reform him. From sources like this there spread a sentimental sympathy with criminals, the results of which were recently expressed by one of the most respected of American Judges, who said: "The taking of hie for the highest crimes, after due process of law, seems to be the only way of taking life to which the average American has any objection." Dr. White entered a strong plea for righteous anger against the criminal class, and came down with a heavy hand upon the abuse of the pardoning power by Governors of States. Nor did he forget to point the way to a remedy for the existing evil. First, there should be more attention given to simple, elementary instruction in morals in the schools. From the pulpits there should be more preaching of righteousness. Repressive laws should ociety has no right to punish the criminal, but

THAT LETTER FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES -THIRTEEN CLUB MANAGERS TAKE MOMENTOUS ACTION.

The incident is closed-Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is exonerated from the charge of having had any intentions of joining the Thirteen Club, Mr. Rawson is expelled, and peace is once more brooding like a gentle spirit o'er the earth. It all came about through the efforts of the Board of Managers of the Thirteen Club, which august body met last night at the Hotel Richelleu in West Twenty-fourth-st., and sat upon the case of A. L. Sir: In view of the fact that I am not and never have been an actual member of the Thirteen Club, although in sympathy with its purposes, so far as I know them, your summons of April 6 is surprisine. I have done a substantial service to the club and got It a very wite advertisement, free and favorable so far, and now you ask me to spend $5 or so to attend your meeting on the 10th—not a dinner, but a tend your meeting on the 10th—not a dinner, but a roasting. Thanks, awfully, but I am not in that. Your management might have tendered me the honorary membership that His Royal Highness Prince Albert refused, since my dirst name is Albert. A witness, not a member of the club, who told of the facts and then pleaded for the accused man, of the facts and then pleaded for the accused man, was told that "the goodness of your heart is in conflict with your testimony." It was then voted, in deep gloom and without a dissenting voice, to expel the said Hawson, and the Chief Ruier, striking his gavel, a thigh-bone, upon the coffin in front of him, said: "I therefore declare Albert L. Rawson Lobe ignominously expelled from the Thirteen Club." Then the managers decided, also unanimously, that they were sorry that Sir Francis Knollys had been the subject of any unpleasantness, and also wrote a letter to him. The letter inclosed a report of the proceedings, an apology and the statement that the action of the garbing ex-member was repudiated. The letter will be sent to the Prince of Wales and Sir Francis, who are supposed to have been sixing up nights over the matter, by the fastest mail steamship. OBITUARY.

COLONEL JOHN A. COCKERILL

A dispatch to "The New-York Herald" from Cairo, Egypt, last night announced the death in that city of Colonel John A. Cockerill from apoplexy. He was stricken in the barber shop of Shepheard's Hotel at 7/20 o'clock and remained unconscious until the time of his death, shortly after 10. He had best of health.

nel Cockerill was born near Dayton, Ohio, in 1845. His father, John R. Cockerill, was a man education, but on the breaking out of the war both father and son entered the Army, the former drummer boy. After the war young Cockeril learned the printing trade on "The Scion of Ten perance," and also acted as one of the clerks of the Ohio Senate. He next became a partner of Clement L. When the Russo-Turkish war broke out he was sent to the scene of hostilities as special correspondent for "The Enquirer," accompanying the Turkish army. On his return from Europe, with Stilson Hutchins he established "The Washington Post," but soon disposed of his interest in that paper to become Editor of "The Baltimore Gazette." Post, but soon disposed of his interest in that paper to become Editor of "The Baltimore Cazette."

From Baltimore, Colonel Cockerili went to St. Louis, in 1880, to edit "The Post-Objeatch," under Joseph Pulitzer. When Mr. Pulitzer took hold of "The New-York World," he invited Colonel Cockerill to assume the duties of managing editor of that paper, which he was largely instrumental in building up, and with which he was connected for eight years. In 1881 he became Editor of "The Morning Advertiser" and "The Commercial Advertiser," in which position he remained for three years. Early in 1886 Colonel Cockerili was sent by "The New-York Hernid" to act as its correspondent in Japan and China. He left Japan only a few weeks ago, after the Mikado had bestowed upon him one of the most coveted decorations, that of the Sacred Treasure. He was resting in Cairo for a while, studying the Anglo-Egyptian campaign before starting for home, when he was so suddenly stricken down.

DR. JAMES JAY MAPES.

Dr. James Jay Mapes, a young physician of this city, died at Saranac Lake yesterday after a long diness. He was a son of Charles V. Mapes, of No. son of General James Jonas Mapes, who com-manded the American forces about New-York in the at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and then studied in Edinburgh, and in the competitive ex-amination took first honors. He then returned to amination took first honors. He then returned to this city and entered the New-York Hespital, where he again obtained first honors. After serving as house surgeon for eighteen months he went abroad and resumed his medical studies at Paris and Avienna. While in Paris he studied under Dr. Roux, of Pasteur Institute, at the time of the discovery of the celebrated antitoxin for the cure of diphtheria. When Dr. Mapes returned to this country Dr. Roux gave him some vals of the antitoxin, which was the first ever brought here. During his absence abroad Dr. Mapes was appointed resident physician of the Nursery and Chid's Hospital at Physician of the hospital in January, 1885. At that time an epidemic of diphtheria prevalled among the children in the hospital and the mortality was extremely large. Dr. Mapes applied the new treatment of antitoxin and it met with marked success. He contributed two articles to "The New-York Medical Journal" on the subject of Dr. Roux's discovery and treatment in France. About six months ago his health broke down and he contracted tuberculosis and went to Saranac Lake, where he remained until his death. He was one of the four Mapes brothers who were famous as athletes in Columbia College. THE RIGHT REV. STEPHEN VINCENT RYAN Buffalo, April 10.-The Right Rev. Stephen Vincent Ryan, Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Bishop Ryan was unconscious at the time he died, having been in that condition since yesterday morning. Death came peacefully and without any sign remained at his bedside watching through the night and waiting for the end. The last sacraments were administered last Friday, and prayers for the dying were said during the night. Shortly after 6 o'clock this morning it was seen that the Bishop could live but a few minutes longer. Fathers Lanigan, Cronin. Gibbons and McGloin, Chancellor Sheehan, the Bishop's relatives from Allegheny City, and some of the servants assembled at the bedside.

The body of Bishop Ryan will lie at his late home until Sunday afternoon, when it will be escorted to the Cathedral. It will lie in state there until the the Cathedral. It will lie in state there until the funeral, which will take place at 929 o'clock next Tuesday morning. The burial will be under the Cathedral altar, beside the hodies of Bishop Timon and Monsignor Gleason. Father Sheehan, Chanceilor of the diocese, will act as the master of ceremonies. It is likely that Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, will preach the funeral sermon. When Bishop Ryan was elected to the Bishopric, the Archbishop, then a parish priest, preached the consecration sermon, and twenty-five years later, at Bishop Ryan's silver jubilee celebration, the Archbishop preached at the pontifical high mass, celebrated in honor of the occasion.

DANCING ON THE SPAR DECK.

A RECEPTION BY THE NAVAL RESERVE ON THE OLD WARSHIP NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

old New-Hampshire, which lies at East Twenty-eighth-st., really looked gay last night when the Second Division of the Naval Reserve gave a reception and dance on board it. Never before has the ship, which is now sixty-seven years old, presented so attractive and inspiriting an appearance, and seldom before, if ever, have its broad decks been crowded with so many beautiful and hand-somely-gowned women, who not only danced to their hearts' content, but insisted on making a musicians, the Navai Battalion band, were inspired by their gay and festive surroundings and played with notable spirit.

to decorate the spar deck, where the reception and dancing took place. The sides of the inclosed deck were covered with blue and gold bunting, streamers of which also decorated the ceiling, while from the crossbeams were suspended rows of Japanese lanterns, illuminated by electricity. The National col-ors, the State flag, the naval flags, the signal and battailon flags were conspicuous in the embellish-ment of the deck, which supplied an excellent danc-
